The Department of Energy (DOE) encourages the utilization of small business concerns to accomplish its Prime Contractors' varied and complex missions. Small business concerns operate in many North American Industrial Classification System (NAICS) codes and represent sizes that expand from start-up to mature firms. Prospective DOE contractors should seek to maximize subcontracting opportunities with small business concerns by utilizing multiple sources and databases to identify potential small business subcontractors. The databases include: the Central Contractor Registration (CCR) and databases maintained by agencies, trade associations and industry.
