AUTOMATED CLEARING HOUSE (ACH) EXPRESS

	ACHexpress	Y	FINANCIAL OPERATIONS	2110 - General Accounting	Standalone	Business/Other (MC	Level C	ACH (Automated Clearing House) - Next Day Transactions The Automated Clearing House (ACH) is the central clearing facility that receives electronic payments from banks, distributes funds between banks, and settles transactions. The electronic payments you make are processed through the ACH. Though you never deal directly with the ACH system, it might be helpful to have a basic understanding of how transactions are processed and settled. Here's how it works. Let's suppose you're paying an employee $400.00 by direct deposit. You use the system to create payroll transactions and then transmit the transactions to the bank.□ Bank systems debit your account and then send instructions into the ACH system to credit your employee's bank account (in a different bank) $400.00.□ Computers at the ACH receive these instructions, transfer money between banks, and then pass on instructions to credit the employee's account $400.00.

Geographic information systems are computer-based tools for mapping and analyzing things that exist and events that happen on earth. Geographic information system technology integrates common database operations such as query and statistical analyses with the unique visualization and geographic analysis benefits offered by maps. These abilities distinguish GIS from other information systems and make it valuable for explaining events, predicting outcomes, and planning strategies. A GIS stores information about the world as a collection of thematic layers that can be linked together by geography.

It currently is not used to track waste. The application provides chemical information relative to quantity on hand, location, container types, health and physical hazards, and hazardous constituents of mixtures. The ICMS provides a single system to obtain complete and accurate information on chemicals, in a timely manner, for reports required by DOE, EPA, Federal, and state agencies. In addition, the information is utilized to meet the objectives associated with ISMS, ISO 1400, and the management objective of achieving and maintaining full environmental regulatory compliance.

It take advantage of the capabilities of Notes Domino. The repository was setup several years ago with no additional work being preformed on the Notes side. All budgeted funds are to support content. So, looks like it would stay in the Architecture Repository as an app but with no funds applied, it would be removed from the Portfolio.

LESSONS LEARNED MANAGEMENT SYSTEM
	LLMS	N	LESSONS LEARNED	3L50 - PERFORMANCE ASSURANCE-IC	Enterprise-wide	Business/Other (MC	Level C	The current Lessons Learned Management System (LLMS) database contains more than 2100 records and more are being added every week. The information contained in these records can ultimately help us perform our jobs more safely and/or efficiently; but first that information must be found, and then, if applicable, incorporated into out procedures, policies, training, and work packages, etc. In the past, finding information that was relevant to a specific job or a project being planned was not easy. The new LLMS search function has put an end to that concern. This system was migrated off of the Mysql and Python platforms during the 8-2002 timeframe.

It serves as company interface between employees and manufacturers in obtaining required MSDSs, provides MSDS updates for chemicals and products used at the INEEL to ensure that employees have access to information about hazardous chemicals in the workplace. The MSDS intranet web database ensures employees 24 hour access to MSDSs for chemicals/products used at the INEEL. Through interface with the 442.10 Agent Request and Evaluation form, chemicals and product MSDSs are identified for input in the database. Electronic Document Management System (EDMS) captures and maintains the MSDS images and MSDS specific information on their server for 75 plus year retention. Two additional MSDS databases are networked for employee access: MDL Occupational Health MSDS (generic MSDSs) and Sigma Aldrich MSDSs (manufacturer specific.) Harold Mothersill is the developer.

The Radiological Safety Analysis Computer Program (RSAC) calculates the consequences of a release of radionuclides to the atmosphere. Using a personal computer, a user can generate a fission product inventory from either a reactor operating history or a nuclear criticality accident. RSAC models the effects of high-efficiency particulate air filters or other cleanup systems and calculates decay and ingrowth during transport through processes, facilities, and the environment. Doses are calculated for resuspension, inhalation, immersion, ground surface, and ingestion pathways. WinRp (Windows Rsac Plus) assists users in creating and running RSAC input files.

TES	N	RADIOLOGICAL CONTROLS	7610 - Radiological Engineering	Enterprise-wide	Business/Other (MC	Level D	RCIMS/TES is essentially a database for integrating most of the Radiological Control records and allows on-line access to radiation workers' current dose records. The principle software application is the Indus PassPort Total Exposure System (TES) module, a commercial off the shelf (COTS) software. The TES software provides for the generation and retention of Radiation Work Permits (RWPs) that are used to implement radiation safety measures and for the retention of individual personnel radiation dose information. The application also controls access into radiologically controlled areas using the Indus PassPort Access Control software, a utility of the TES software. Finally, as the official radiation dose repository for the site, the system is used to generate regulatory reports as required by Federal agencies.

NAME	ACRONYM	COT	SUBJECT_AREA	Org	DEPLOYMENT	TYPE	LEVEL	APPLICATION_DESCRIPTION
	YNP	N	RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT	4633 - Ecological/Cultural Resources	EXTERNAL	Business/Other (MC	Level D	Recent research in Yellowstone National Park has indicated that the thermal features contain microbiological diversity with the potential for remarkable scientific and economic impact. The cataloging and mapping of microorganisms in extreme environments is of strategic importance for regional and national resource management and fundamental scientific research. For resource preservation and utilization, scientists need to understand microbiological diversity and the associated habitats. Scientific research has been hampered by the difficulty of retrieving information, the timely posting of scientific data, and the inadvertent disruption of studies by other investigators selecting the same field sites. For resource utilization, the NPS has a plan to encourage commercial microbiological research interests in the National Parks. Yet, there is no formal means to catalog these microbial resources. This project is developing an Internet based relational database and GIS application for mapping and cataloging microbial biodiversity data and associated geochemical/hydrological attributes.
